ON DAY 1 (19/02/2024)

The most important benefit for students who are involved in research is their experience and exposure to the research process, which are critical for them to be inspired to consider research as their career choice.

On first day of the program Dr. Vaishnavi, Reader and Head(I/C) from the department of Public Health Dentistry gave brief introduction about the importance of research to the students. She enlightened students about the importance of research, types of research and about research problem. She also explained about research question and research objective.

Students were also explained about the hypothesis which includes research hypothesis, null hypothesis, directional, non-directional, simple and complex hypothesis. Few questions were given to the students and students were very enthusiastic to find the type of hypothesis given to them.

In the second and third session, Dr. Soundarya, Senior lecturer from department of Public Health Dentistry had enlightened students on how to search an article. She also highlighted on different data bases available for searching an article. She explained about search filters, Boolean operators which is a set of commands that can be used in almost every search engine, database, or online catalogue like AND, OR, NOT that are used as conjunctions to combine or exclude keywords in a search. After the lecture class workshop on search engines was also conducted for the students
